ABSTRACT

The directory provides information on 648 private sector programs offering services leading to competitive employment for disabled people. It is designed to help employers looking for trained and job-ready workers as well as to help individuals with disabilities in their search for available training and employment programs. Programs are listed geographically by state and city and citations provide a brief description of training areas, training levels, placement areas, post-placement support, and disability levels served. Programs are cross referenced by training areas. Appended material includes listings of State Vocational Rehabilitation Agencies, State Governor's Committees on Employment of the Handicapped, and Executive Directors of Developmental Disability State Planning Councils. A final section consists of program and training area cross-reference charts for each state and territory. (CL)

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

This Directory was made possible through the cooperation of Dorcas R. Hardy, Assistant Secretary for Human Development Services, U. S. Department of Health and Human Services, Madeline C. Will, Assistant Secretary for Special Education, Rehabilitative Services, U. S. Department of Education and Jean K. Elder, Ph.D., Commissioner, Administration on Developmental Disabilities, U. S. Department of Health and Human Services under contract No. SA-85-2272.

THE SECRETARY OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20201

September 11, 1985

This National Directory is a first -- a breakthrough. It outlines the training and employment programs available to Americans with disabilities from Maine to Florida to Oregon.

It is an outstanding example of cooperation and partnership: teamwork between this Department and the Department of Education and the joining of government and the private sector hands.

We at Health and Human Services are proud of the success of our Hire Ability initiative. It has dramatized the fact that even the most severely disabled Americans can and do succeed in the competitive marketplace. This Directory will accelerate the pace of progress. It provides a very useful tool -- linking training and placement opportunities to those with a wide range of disabilities

I look forward to many more such milestones on our path to achieving the maximum possible self sufficiency for all Americans.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION
THE SECRETARY

America is a land of opportunity, and the dream of economic opportunity is shared by all Americans, including those with disabilities.

The Department of Health and Human Services and the Department of Education fully support the private sector's efforts to hire workers with disabilities. We are pleased to have prepared this directory to assist employers with their efforts.

This directory lists, geographically, training and employment programs which prepare persons with disabilities for competitive employment. It is our hope that it will be a valuable resource for employers seeking to hire trained and qualified workers.

Through employment, the private sector is moving to open the doors of opportunity to many of America's citizens with disabilities. Workers with disabilities have proven they can hold their own in competitive employment. Employers are responding to their successes by opening new avenues for employment and advancement. It is time to build upon these successes.

Once employed, Americans with disabilities can move toward economic self-sufficiency, and begin to turn their dreams into reality.

INTRODUCTION

People with disabilities are an underutilized national resource. Efforts to uphold the right of disabled persons to competitive employment benefit not only those with disabilities but society as a whole. The National Directory of Training and Employment Programs for Americans with Disabilities is intended as a resource that can bring us closer to providing fulfilling, competitive employment for all Americans with disabilities.

The Directory is being made available to private sector employers so that they may readily locate programs that can match trained, job-ready individuals with appropriate employment opportunities. The Directory may also be used by people with disabilities and their families to locate employment and training programs.

There are 648 programs listed in the Directory. Each provides a brief description to include: training areas; training levels; placement areas; post-placement support; and disability areas served. Every effort has been made to assure accuracy, with information being obtained from those programs which have consented to be included in the Directory.

DISCLAIMER

All of the programs listed in this Directory are believed to offer services leading to employment in regular work settings where non-disabled people are employed. The goal is full time work at the close of training. Jobs are at or above the minimum wage, subsidized only by temporary job credits and similar incentives to employers to hire people with disabilities.

Some of the programs may lead to employment outcomes different from those identified. The Directory does not intentionally highlight employment services which lead to other outcomes. The authors of the Directory, the Department of Health and Human Services and the Department of Education, do not provide endorsement for, nor guarantee of, the quality of employment assistance provided by the programs listed.

Users are invited to comment on the appropriateness of programs listed for inclusion in future directories.

HOW TO USE

The National Directory of Training and Employment Programs For Americans with Disabilities

This Directory is an easy-to-use resource guide. It will assist employers in their search for trained and job-ready workers. It will also assist individuals who have disabilities in their search for training and employment programs available to them. The Directory compiles, for the first time, invaluable information on programs which provide training for competitive, private sector employment.

Programs are listed geographically by state and city. This facilitates quick location of those programs which are close in proximity to you, the user of the directory.

Each program is assigned an Identification Number, see the sample entry on the next page. Programs are sequentially numbered. ID numbers facilitate easy location and cross referencing of programs.

To use the Directory, turn to the state of interest and focus your attention on the column of information on the left side of each entry. This information tells the location of the program and the contact information.

Now, turn your attention to the column of information on the right side of each entry. This information itemizes the services provided by each program. Look in this area to find those programs which meet your needs.

All information is current as of February 28, 1985.

The appendixes will help you locate sources of additional information on competitive employment of people with disabilities.

- Appendix A is the listing of Executive Directors of Developmental Disability State Planning Councils.
- Appendix B is the listing of State Vocational Rehabilitation Agencies.
- Appendix C is the listing of State Governor's Committees on Employment of the Handicapped.

The Final section of the Directory is the cross-reference charts. These charts provide easy location of programs which provide various areas of training. It provides cross-reference between programs and the training areas. See the sample chart on the next page.

To use the cross reference section, first turn your attention to the information on the left. This is the Identification Number, Program Name and the city and state address of the program. Now, turn your attention to the information along the top of the chart. This lists the areas of training provided by the program. The intersection between the program and the area of training is marked by a ●.

This chart allows you to quickly locate those programs which have specific areas of training in cities of interest to you.
